

ABSTRACT

What is disclosed is an organic electronic device which has at least one hetero-structure of film layers. The layers can be cross-linked and stacked one upon another to add a plurality of different functions and optimizations to the device, particularly in organic light emitting diodes.